

Pollinator Project

Donna Payton, Chair

Participants in the Pollinator Project strive to increase the use of plants (both native and non-native) which provide food and habitat for wildlife, including pollinators and beneficial insects, on private and public land in our community. This is done through educational efforts (social media, booths, presentations, newspaper articles, hosting free plantings) and by selling plants (both privately and now mostly commercially grown) at plant sales and club meetings.

Contact Donna Payton if you would like to learn more!